The Horus Heresy

When the Horus Heresy began, Luther was initially loyal to the Emperor. However, he was disillusioned by the Emperor's decision to abandon the Great Crusade and return to Terra. He also began to resent Lion El'Jonson, who he felt was becoming increasingly arrogant and distant.

Luther's doubts and suspicions eventually boiled over into open rebellion. He led a group of Dark Angels in a mutiny against Lion El'Jonson, and he declared himself the new leader of the Legion. Luther then allied himself with the traitorous Warmaster Horus, and he fought against the Imperium in the Horus Heresy.

The Siege of Terra

Luther played a key role in the Siege of Terra, the final battle of the Horus Heresy. He led a force of Dark Angels into the Imperial Palace, and he fought his way to the Emperor's throne room. However, he was defeated by Lion El'Jonson, and he was taken prisoner.

Aftermath of the Heresy

After the Horus Heresy, Luther was imprisoned in the Rock, the Dark Angels' fortress-monastery. He was tortured for centuries, but he never revealed the location of the other Fallen Dark Angels.

Luther remains a prisoner of the Dark Angels to this day. He is a constant reminder of the Legion's past treachery, and he is a symbol of the darkness that can lurk within even the most loyal hearts.

Luther is a master of deception and manipulation. He is able to win the trust of others, even those who are suspicious of him. He is also a skilled orator, and he is able to sway people to his side with his words.

Motivations

Luther's motivations are complex and difficult to understand. He is driven by a desire for power and glory, but he also believes that he is fighting for a just cause. He believes that the Imperium is corrupt and that it needs to be overthrown.

Luther is also motivated by a deep-seated hatred of Lion El'Jonson. He believes that Lion is a tyrant who has betrayed the Dark Angels. He wants to defeat Lion and take revenge for the wrongs that he has done.
