The game is divided into two main phases: the hunting phase and the building phase. During the hunting phase, you will explore the wilderness, hunt for animals, and gather resources. During the building phase, you will use the resources you have gathered to build and upgrade your settlement.

The hunting phase is action-packed and exciting. You will need to use your skills as a hunter to track and kill animals. You will also need to be aware of the dangers of the wilderness, such as predators and poisonous plants.
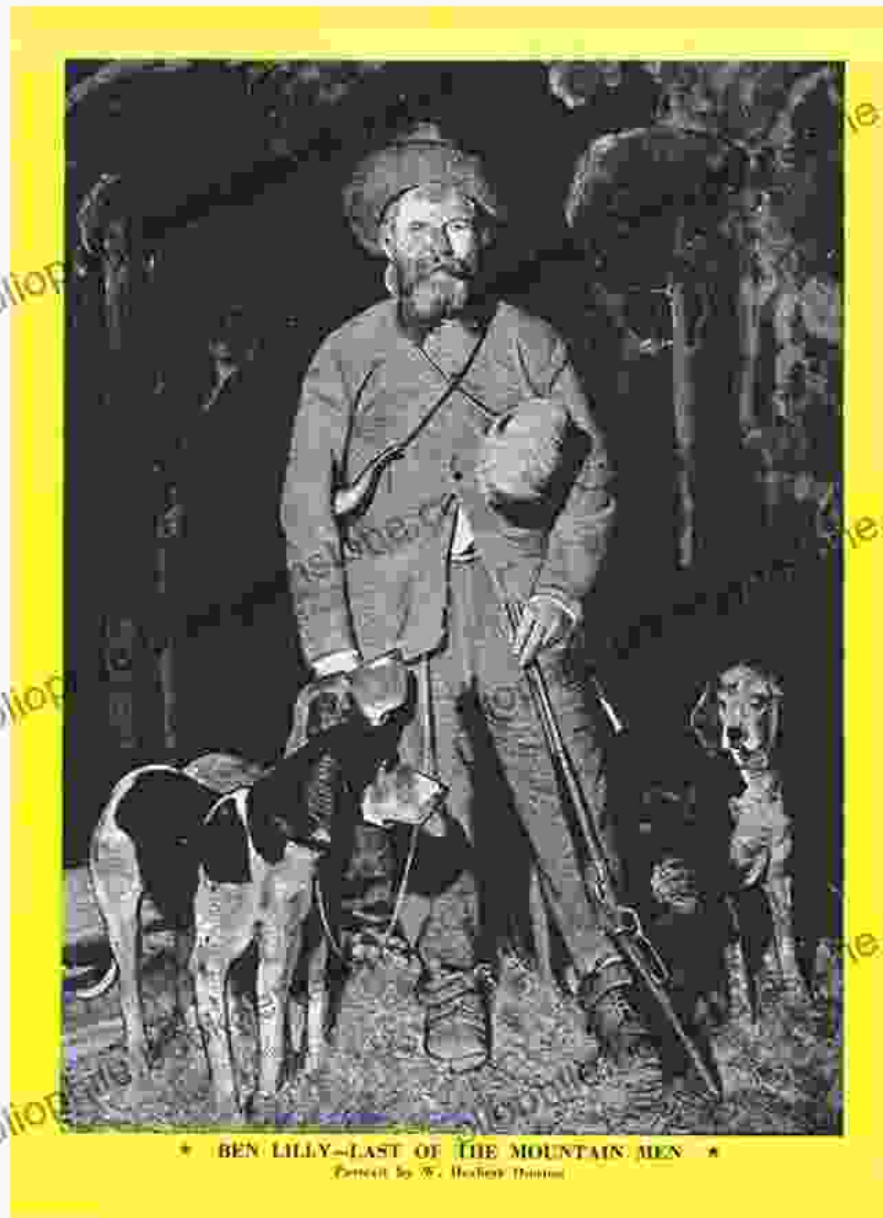

The building phase is more strategic and relaxing. You will need to plan and design your settlement carefully, taking into account the needs of your pack and the resources that you have available. You will also need to defend your settlement from attacks by enemies.
